Programs for Young Audiences

Bach's Kids

(A 45-minute program for the whole family.)

Bach had 20 kids, and still managed to write over 1000 pieces of music. He must have been very busy! In this program, we'll get to know Bach's cello music, and learn how his active home life might actually have helped him write his music. Along the way, I'll share stories from playing at the White House, and we'll also hear songs by James Brown, Macklemore and the Glenn Miller Orchestra, and see how all great music is put together the same way.

Telling Stories with Music

(A 45-minute program for the whole family.)

Some pieces of music have a story, and others inspire you to write your own! In this program, we'll hear both. I'll play cello pieces about underwater cities and knights on horseback, and we'll write some tales together, too. I'll also tell some true stories about meeting the world's scariest cellist, and what it's like to perform at the White House!
